Allison Losi - Rutland Area

alosi@benchmarkhs.com

I would not be where I am today, with the morals and values instilled in me by my mother and father. One day in fifth grade, my mother and I were driving in the car when I had my very first seizure. It was after the third seizure where my parents brought me to a neurologist. The Doctor told my parents that I most likely would not even make it to college. They were appalled by the words that came out of the doctor's mouth. From that day on until present day, my parents never stopped advocating for me. Shame on those doctor because I ended up getting my graduate certificate in Applied Behavioral Analysis, Masters in Education and Certificate as a Personal Trainer and Health and Wellness Coach. Because of the drive my parents instilled in me, I played college soccer, dabbled in marathon running and weightlifting. Today, I have three beautiful children. I worked at the public school for 12+ years until I relocated back to my home town of Rutland, VT with my children. Benchmark combines all my passions: writing a story to illustrate the beauty of an individual, where they came from and where they want to be. Then taking that story and creating a plan to provide the necessary resources to meet their goals.

Four years ago, I decided to do something more meaningful, and wanting to assist others. I started as a Direct Support Provider in Brattleboro, Vermont supporting individuals with intellectual disabilities. Within 8 months, I became a Service Coordinator so I could better support my clients' needs. Going into Human Services has been the best decision I have made. I have three adult children, one who just recently graduated high school and will be attending college in the Fall. I am a big animal lover, having two cats, Penny and Georgie, and my goofy but lovable golden retriever, Rosey. I enjoy kayaking, antiques, reading, attending 80's music concerts, traveling, and cooking.

I was a shared living provider for over 13 years. I have worked in an elementary school for the past 10 years. I first started my journey in a program working with children with autism, performing ABA training. I then moved into the role of a behavior specialist in a gen ed setting. I love working with children and adults to advocate and make sure their needs are met. I also love being outside, camping, and spending time with my daughter!
